June 30, 1963

Honorable Farris Bryant
Governor of Florida
The Capitol
Tallahassee, Florida

Dear Governor Bryant:

We call this annual report YEAR OF PROGRESS because it climaxes a long struggle to equip our department with a staff adequate to begin a program of rehabilitation instead of just relief.

Because most of the persons served by this department are unemployable, rehabilitation usually does not mean jobs. It does mean, however, better living; it means more fruitful lives for the aged and disabled; it means higher levels of health and decency; and it means a good chance for a better life ahead for thousands of dependent children and their indigent parents.

We have a tradition of twenty-six years of relief to overcome. So, our start this year is only that, a start. As our attack on dependency grows, we will keep you informed of our progress.

Sincerely,

J. Hal Stallings
Chairman, State Welfare Board

legislative program

Although the three major points of the department's legislative program were an adequate staff adequately compensated, improved services and benefits to children, and permissive recovery law, the following outline shows the total legislative program and its results.

1. ADEQUATE SIZE STAFF; ADEQUATELY COMPENSATED.

The Result: Enough additional public assistance staff members to offer the services of social rehabilitation to applicants and recipients, plus a few more to administer the Medical Assistance for the Aged and the adoption services programs. As a basis for appropriation for staff, the legislature used the merit system recommendations for salaries and salary adjustments, thereby returning to the established pay plan and giving the department the most adequate salary scales possible at this time.

2. IMPROVED BENEFITS AND SERVICES TO CHILDREN.

The Result: Although the $81 maximum for Aid to Families with Dependent Children was not lifted, the increase in staff mentioned above will improve services. The improvements include a social study of the situation and a written plan for the future of each of the 84,000 children receiving assistance, and more frequent visits to their homes, a redetermination of eligibility each six months, plus rehabilitation services.

Although the appropriation for Child Welfare Services was not increased, the legislature did authorize the department to begin an adoption placement services program. This will extend these services, uniformly, to children and families who need them throughout the state.

The department also asked for prescribed medicines, under the vendor payment plan, to recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. This was not provided.

3. PERMISSIVE RECOVERY LAW, to allow the department to recover assistance funds from the estates of deceased recipients.

The Result: The House Welfare Committee killed the bill. In the Senate, the Judiciary Committee reported the bill out favorably and it failed of passage by a few votes.

4. FOSTER HOME CARE FOR THE AGED, a demonstration program.

The Result: The department was authorized to have a demonstration program to establish the feasibility of placing aged people, who cannot fully care for themselves, in private homes like those they once lived in. The program will be limited to 300 cases. Most of the persons eligible for this service have some degree of disability but should not have to live in nursing homes or state institutions.

5. AID TO FAMILIES WITH DEPENDENT CHILDREN WHERE THE BREADWINNER IS UNEMPLOYED.

The Result: The bill was not introduced in either house.

6. UNIFORM ELIGIBILITY FOR THE AGED, DISABLED, AND BLIND.

The Result: The bill passed. Now U. S. citizenship is required in Aid to the Blind as it is in the other two adult programs; the relative responsibility provision is removed from the Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled program; and to complete the uniformity, the State Welfare Board extended the exemption of $750 cash value of life insurance to the blind and disabled, as it has been for the aged. The results of this uniformity are simplified reporting to the U. S. Bureau of Family Services, and an additional federal matching percentage which helps the department to make nursing home care payments up to $100 a month for the blind and disabled, just as this payment has been made for the aged since the passage of the Kerr-Mills bill in 1960, plus additional federal funds for hospitalization and prescribed medicines.

7. TWO TECHNICAL BILLS REQUESTED BY THE DEPARTMENT.

These two bills strengthen the fraud law in regard to the use of food commodities distributed to needy people; and enable the department to sell real property, just as it can sell personal property coming to it from the will of a grateful recipient, for instance, who had no heirs.

The Result: Both bills passed.

8. MEDICAL ASSISTANCE FOR THE AGED. Though the department did not recommend this program to the legislature, it recognized its responsibility to administer it if it should be adopted, and had prepared a plan of administration.

The Result: A small Medical Assistance for the Aged program.

personnel

The department began this year with 1255 employees. The first six months of the year averaged 1265 employees per month. The second six months averaged 1303 per month, ending the year with a payroll of 1314. During the first half of the year there were 184 hired and 164 separated.

In the second half of the year, even more people qualified for positions with the department and by the end of the year all vacancies were filled. During the second six months of the year the number of persons hired was 223 and the number of persons separated was 168.

Of the 332 separations during the entire year, 13 were at the request of the department and 6 left because of their dissatisfaction with the job or with working conditions.

The improvements in salary scales authorized by the 1963 legislature already attract many new people to apply for jobs with the department. And, the new emphasis on social rehabilitation services makes the programs of the department much more attractive to young people looking for challenging careers in public service.

public assistance

The most sweeping change of the year was the adoption of a policy to extend services that are socially rehabilitative in nature to beneficiaries of public assistance. This was made practicable by legislative action. The appropriations act for 1963-1965 provides, in line 791, a sum of money "for salaries, expenses, and operating capital outlay for a reasonable implementation of 1962 Federal amendments to the Social Security Act relating to increased services for welfare recipients...." Adopted by the State Welfare Board, at its last meeting of the fiscal year, the new policy sets forth the basic responsibility of the department to serve the people who apply for or receive benefits through the public assistance program.

To all people who apply to the department for service, this responsibility includes: 1. providing the client with an opportunity to present his problem as he sees it; 2. clarifying for him the services of the department and eligibility requirements; 3. assisting him to establish eligibility to the extent that he can do this himself; 4. planning with him for making full use of the resources of the agency in meeting his needs including the use of special circumstance items in the assistance standards by use of special organized programs; 5. providing him with information about pertinent community resources; 6. making referrals to such resources as are appropriate to the client's situation when the client wishes to have this done; 7. supporting and encouraging the client in arriving at and carrying out a plan in relation to his needs and problems.

In addition to those basic services above, the department will provide services which are, in effect, socially rehabilitative to these groups: 1. aged and disabled individuals in need of protection; 2. aged and disabled individuals requiring services to remain in their communities or return to their own homes; 3. blind and other disabled individuals with potential for self-support in whole or in part; 4. unmarried parents and their children with specified problems; 5. families disrupted by desertion or impending desertion; 6. families with adults or teen-agers with potentialities for self-support; 7. children in need of protection or with special health or educational problems.

During the year, other changes in public assistance policy made by the board broadened some benefits, restricted some, and simply modified others in the interest of greater equity. Among the increased benefits were: raising the maximum grant for the aged, blind, and disabled from $66 to $70; the exemption of certain earned income in Old Age Assistance; and the exemption of certain income and resources of blind recipients where it is part of an approved plan to achieve self-support. In limiting some benefits, the board removed oxygen from the list of prescribed medicines for which the department will pay; and it set a maximum cost limit of $25 on any single prescription. The board also amended its policy on automobile ownership so that payments made on the purchase of an automobile are counted as income available to the recipient unless the automobile is a real need related directly to employment. In the interest of greater equity, the board adopted an equalization formula for the valuation of non-homestead real estate; and it put into effect revised standards for measuring minimum needs. The new standards give greater weight to the needs of the single person who cannot prepare his own food, and to the economies inherent in larger families where per person living costs are proportionately smaller.

APPEALS' HEARINGS

Most fair hearings of appeals result from the complaint of an applicant or recipient wishing to contest the district board's decision to reject an application or to reduce or cancel a grant. The State Welfare Board studies each case and all information brought out at the hearing. This table shows the decisions of the state board during the past year.

1962	Denied	Granted	1963	Denied	Granted

Over 70% of the money spent by the department comes to Florida as grants-in-aid from the federal government. The Florida statutes require the department to take maximum advantage of available federal funds.

Here, in summary form, is the set of standards which states must meet if they are to receive federal grants.

A STATE ASSISTANCE PLAN MUST:

1. Provide that it shall be in effect in all political subdivisions of the state and, if administered by them, be mandatory upon them.
2. Provide for financial participation by the state.
3. Provide for the establishment or designation of a single state agency to administer the plan or to supervise the administration of the plan.

4. Provide opportunity for a fair hearing by the state agency to anyone whose claim for assistance is denied or not acted upon with reasonable promptness.
5. Provide such methods of administration, including establishment and maintenance of personnel standards on the merit basis, as are found by the U. S. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, to be necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the plan.
6. Provide that the state agency will make such reports and in such form, containing such information, as is required by the federal administration; and comply with provisions necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such forms.
7. Provide that the state agency shall, in determining need, take into consideration any other income and resources of an individual claiming assistance; except in aid to the blind where the first $85 per month of earned income, plus one-half of all income over that, shall be disregarded; and, after July 1, 1963, all income and resources of the blind in a plan for rehabilitation shall be disregarded for one year; and in aid to the aged, the first $10 of earned income plus one-half of all other earned income over that $10, up to a maximum of $50, (a $30 maximum exemption) shall be disregarded.
8. Provide safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants or recipients to purposes directly connected with the administration of the assistance program. If names of recipients and amount of payment are made public, authority for such disclosure must be in law, and the law must preclude use of lists or names for political or commercial purposes.
9. Provide that all individuals wishing to apply for assistance shall have opportunity to do so, and that assistance shall be furnished with reasonable promptness to all eligible individuals.

10. Provide, if the plan includes payments to individuals in private or public institutions, for the establishment or designation of a state authority which shall be responsible for establishing and maintaining standards for such institutions.
11. Prohibit concurrent receipt of assistance under more than one approved plan.
12. Provide a description of the services (if any) which the state agency makes available to applicants for and recipients or assistance to help them attain self-support or self-care, or to help maintain and strengthen family life for children.
13. Provide a plan of service for each child receiving benefits from the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, and a plan for special services to children in need of protection.

Each monthly public assistance grant is subject to the scrutiny of both state and federal auditors. To assure that a grant was properly paid, and in the proper amount, here are four of the criteria which federal auditors may use to determine if federal funds were properly used. When these requirements are not fully met, the state must repay funds to the federal government.

1. There must be a determination of initial eligibility for each recipient of assistance.
2. There must be a determination of continuing eligibility for each recipient of assistance at specified times.
3. Assistance must be in the form of unrestricted money payments to the recipient, except vendor payments for medical care on behalf of the recipient.
4. Payment must be made to the proper payee.

child welfare services

Among the changes in Child Welfare Services policy last year was a broadening of the department's foster home care program to make it more uniformly available to children according to their needs, without restrictions determined by age or such arbitrary criteria.

In other actions, the board adopted written standards for foster homes licensed by the department. It also authorized the creation of a committee of nine citizens to study the child day-care situation in Florida.

The board approved a policy so the department may accept offers made by some communities to supply funds for child welfare workers, so that the services of the department can be extended to meet local needs, under certain conditions.

The following agencies were licensed during the year:

CHILD CARING INSTITUTIONS

American Children's Home, Miami; Baptist Home for Children, Jacksonville; Boys' Home Association, Jacksonville; Christian Home and Bible School, Mt. # commodity distribution

At the beginning of the year six counties were distributing food commodities to needy persons. These counties were Broward, Dade, Dixie, Leon, Santa Rosa, and Taylor. A special distribution program was in effect for the Seminole Indians on the Brighton and Big Cypress Reservations. In this program of direct distribution to needy persons, foods donated by the federal government are distributed by the county to needy persons living in households. They include recipients of public assistance, of county welfare programs, plus other low income families.

By the end of the year seven more counties had joined this direct distribution program: Escambia, Hardee, Hillsborough, Lake, Okeechobee, Pasco, Polk.

During the winter months emergency food distribution programs were operated intermittently in two counties: Collier and Lee. These programs were due to the unseasonable cold weather, and benefitted primarily migrant agricultural workers. Commodities valued at $8,706.85 went into these programs. During the year, the total value of foods channeled into these direct distribution to needy people programs by the department amounted to a fair wholesale value of $2,145,912.78.

The use of commodities by school lunch programs continues to grow steadily in a pattern established over the recent years. Based on a fair wholesale value the amounts distributed by school lunch programs during the past five fiscal years are as follows:

1958-59	$4,061,408.16
1959-60	$5,270,393.19
1960-61	$5,331,982.91
1961-62	$8,017,875.69
1962-63	$6,489,255.50

The decrease from 1961-62 to 1962-63 was due to the higher dollar value of the 1961-62 foods and a very slight decrease in the 1962-63 tonnage.

civil defense

During the year the department appointed a staff member in each of Florida's 67 counties to serve as county emergency welfare service officer. For civil defense purposes, each of these employees is also an officer on the staff of the county civil defense director.

The department's civil defense coordinator has consulted with the civil defense director and emergency welfare service officer in 62 of the counties and 25 of them have completed their general plan for the administration of emergency welfare services.

At the state level, the welfare service part of Florida's civil defense plan has been brought up to date. And, an administrative manual on welfare services has been completed, with supplements on organization and structure, feeding, clothing. Other supplements are being prepared.
